Strategies for Teaching Students with Autism/Asperger’s Syndrome

Online Course Outline

Course Description
This course is designed to focus on developing an understanding of Autism and Asperger’s Syndrome, of intervention strategies to enhance communication and learning for these students and methods of teaching social skills to assist them in interacting with their peers. This course will provide teachers with tools and strategies to implement effective teaching practices for students with Autism/Asperger’s Syndrome.

Objectives
- Examine the definition of autism and how it is diagnosed
- Analyze the characteristics of autism and their effects on the classroom dynamic
- Utilize resources found on the Internet
- Evaluate the secondary skill challenges of autism: cognitive/language/motor/sensory
- Facilitate methods to improve learning by teaching specific activities for social skills
- Analyze the range and impact of communication challenges and how to support these differences using strategies
- Devise appropriate responses to the different types of behaviors that typically accompany Autism (challenging/ritualistic)
- Determine how to appropriately interact and respond to a child with Autism
- Compare and contrast students with these disorders with other students, and how to teach them given these differences
- Critique articles and Internet resources on Austism/Asperger’s
- Acquire a basic knowledge of the existing body of research dealing with Autism
- Evaluate the course

Curriculum Design & Time Requirements
There are a series of major assessment concepts systematically presented by the instructor using the Socratic or Instructional Conversation method. Each concept acts as a building block to form a basic understanding that teachers can weave into their own classroom strategies and best practices to assist teachers in creating a school setting where assessment and learning go hand in hand. This is a sixty-hour, three credit graduate level course completed over a thirteen-week period.
Course Materials
The required textbook for this course is You’re Gonna Love This Kid! by Paula Kluth. (ISBN 1-55766-614-8). Online readings and website reviews (including journal articles and best practices from the body of educational research) will be assigned during the course to enhance learning.
