Winning and Keeping Parent Support

A Graduate Course

© Teacher Education Institute

Course Description

Teachers and Parents: Winning and Keeping Parent Support presents proven and innovative methods to gain and keep parent support. This model emphasizes interventions through a cooperative team approach between teachers and parents. Based on research endorsed by the National PTA, the skills and procedures taught in this course and practiced in applied assignments will enable educators to maintain supportive involvement from parents of even the most challenging students.

Course Objectives

- Discuss the importance of parent involvement in education.
- Assess the changing demographics in American families.
- Identify barriers to parent involvement in education.
- Identify barriers for teachers involving parents.
- Create strategies for reducing barriers and roadblocks to partnerships between teachers and parents.
- Share successful and recommended parent contact practices.
- Design a "first call" to target parents.
- Analyze the value of making positive phone calls home.
- Create a homework policy.
- Design strategies to help parents solve their children's most common homework problems.
- Conduct and evaluate the success of a parent conference.
- Assess strategies to maintain control during stressful conferences.
- Critique methods of de-escalating conflicts
- Compare and contrast factors that lead to successful negotiation.
- Assess the importance of systematic record keeping.
- Examine the IEP conference as a potential prototype where parents function as members of a team.
- Assess the importance of systematic record keeping.
- Apply research-based principles in assessing parent-teacher relations.

Student Requirements

1. Participation: Participate in all activities
2. Reading: Students will complete all assigned reading in the textbook, Web sites, and research articles or best practices and answer questions in the appropriate Forum thread. All sessions contain a reading assignment from the text. After reading the material, students will write a one-half to one page paper in which they reflect upon the ideas in the reading and how they might apply that information.
3. Final Integration Project: Students may choose to complete either a research report or a parent/student handbook for their final integration project.
 Parent/Student Handbook: Students selecting this option will prepare a parent/student handbook appropriate for their setting. Models and examples will be provided. This project will be due at the end of the course.
 Research Report: Students selecting this option will conduct a review of the professional literature on the relationship between teachers and parents and student achievement. Identify at least three major findings or themes from the research, and use these as criteria for assessing your own situation and experience. Describe the findings and write a two to three page assessment of your involvement with parents relative to your findings.
4. Final Exam: An online exam will be given and will cover material presented in the Sessions.
